

The Internet and means of operation should be easily accessible to all. Net neutrality, open standards, transparency, lack of Internet censorship, and low barriers to entry are necessary and appropriate to the free exchange of ideas. Do not allow corporations to treat this ideal as a commodity to be bought and sold.